

How well would you say that you know Matthew Brown professionally?

Only a little

Extremely well

Give us some context on how you know Matthew Brown.

Give some details on how you and Matthew Brown know each other, and what you have done together.

Matt Brown and I have worked closely everyday together to maintain the stability and integrity of the McKesson Laboratory Information System here at Ascension Wisconsin Glendale Office. I am responsible for maintaining the clinical functionality of the LIS. Matt primarily maintains system stability and performance issues; as well as an extensive list of custom codes created to enhance the LIS.

Matt makes himself available immediately anytime there is a system break, regardless of his working hours or scheduled PTO. I have worked with Matt on system upgrades, system enhancements and system breaks. Though it was not Matt's duty, when I joined the team, Matt was very patient and knowledgeable in helping me get established as the Information System (IS) Owner of Point of Care - and continued to provide support to me until I mastered the functionality.

I would consider Matt to be one of the most capable and resourceful analysts on this floor, across all teams. Matt is also an absolute pleasure to work with. He is very personable and easy to get along with. The Senior and Lead analysts have a very high opinion of Matt and often consult him on issues complex issues when vendor support isn't enough.

How did Matthew Brown on day 1 differ from the person they were on day 100 in the workplace?

How have they adjusted their behaviors and attitudes towards work over time?

My personal experience with Matt is that he has always been very knowledgeable, calm and logical in the workplace. I have not seen Matt deviate from the amount of effort that he puts on a daily basis. Matt's reliability and wits have not changed. When I was new, Matt was friendly but reserved. Within mere weeks, our relationship felt like we had been long time friends. Since then, I have cultivated a relationship based on trust. I know that I can trust Matt as my friend and my coworker. I can rely on him to complete his work and support the laboratory application to function without flaw. |

Anything about Matthew Brown that we missed?

Feel free to tell us more about your experience with Matthew Brown here.

I absolutely love working with Matt. Matt is called upon during the most critical issues and he maintains his cool and resolves the issue in mere minutes. His ability to work well with all teams is very respectable. While Matt is an extremely bright individual with skill sets far beyond his current role, he makes people feel valued and at ease.

I have personally learned a lot from Matt and have become a better analyst as a result. Matt has taught me that there is always a solution - you just have to get creative. He has taught me to how to leverage Crystal Reporting in my role. He has helped me focus my strengths into areas of expertise and often provides me with support on general workstation issues. Matt has taught me many commands on the server-level that help me do a preliminary review of the issues while I am waiting for additional support to log on. Over all, I would consider Matt my go-to guy for all application issues. I appreciate his love for knowledge sharing and how humble he is, considering he is the brightest person I have ever worked with.
